WORK FOR MORRILL.

Disobedience of the Law at Kansas City, Kan.

JOINTISTS ON THE FINE SYSTEM.

Saloons Running Night Along and R.v. Mr. Dougherty Silent as Usual. News of State House Department.

Governor Morrill's police commissioners at Kansas City have now ordered the saloons in that town to close up—(on Sunday.)

Saturday a number of the saloon keepers were arrested and fined $50 each as a license and allowed to continue in the business.

Those who paid their $50 into the police fund were notified that if they open on Sunday they would be arrested on state warrants and their goods would be confiscated.

The following is a list of the saloon keepers who were arrested and fined Saturday morning with the location of their saloons: J. J. Flannery, 27 Kansas avenue; Jack Phillips, two counts, 220 Kansas; Charles Blunk, 400 Minnesota; P. H. Kearney, 27 Kas.; R. Kelly, 49 Central; John Bull, 200 Kansas; John McGinley, Twelfth and Miami; Fred Harbert, 319 Kansas; B. W. Shepherd, 498 Osage; F. C. Gable, 532 Minnesota; W. Hanna, 8 Kansas; T. Hoffman, 18 Kansas; John Rump, 1810 North Third; Charles Mosier, 416 Kansas; Charles Mark, 445 Minnesota; A. Carlson, 315 Osage; John Lane, 708 Osage.

There are so many of them, about 45 in all, that they can't all be fined in one day. The others will be fined this week.

HOW BOARDS MAKE MONEY.

They seem to spend much of their time traveling and charging it up.

W. J. Hurd, the Populist member of the old penitentiary board who, it has been discovered, collected more money from the state than was due him, has commenced proceedings in the supreme court to oust his successor, M. M. Beck.

The state law allows the members of the penitentiary board $400 a year.

In addition to collecting his $400, Mr. Hurd, when directed by the board of which he was a member, traveled around on business for the institution and charged the state $3.50 a day for his services and charged up railroad fare at 10 cents a mile.

On account of the trouble between the state administration and the Chase administration at the penitentiary, Mr. Hurd did not present his vouchers to the state auditor for payment, but was paid his money from the funds in the hand of the penitentiary board.

One voucher for mileage was for $101.70, and another voucher for mileage and expenses amounted to $92.25.

There is some talk of the attorney general bringing suit against Mr. Hurd to recover this money.

IN THE KANSAS BACKWOODS.

Where They Don't Know That There is a Prohibitory Law.

A Topeka man who has just returned from a trip through the northern part of the state says there are some towns up there where a large portion of the inhabitants don't seem to know that the legislature ever enacted a prohibitory law.

One of these towns is Hanover, Washington county. The Topeka man says the jointists not only do a big business, but they have their advertisements displayed in the hotels.

At Hotel Markham in Hanover, two jointists have their signs along with those of the other business men of the town in the hotel office.

One of these advertisements has in the center a picture of a bottle, a cork screw and a mallet. Above this picture is the name of the jointist, "John Mousel." On one side of the picture are the words, "Come and See Me," and on the other side it reads, "Two Blocks Southeast."

Under the picture the wording is, "The Way the Crow Flies."

The other advertisement is under the very appropriate heading, "Drunk Factory," with a picture of a man paddling a canoe in the center. The balance of the advertisement reads, "Joseph Hassur, the best place in town."

At Washington, the county seat, the saloons and joints are closed, but at Hanover and Bremen no attempt has been made to close them.

PROHIBITIONISTS LACK GUMP.

They Can't Get Over Their Party Prejudices, So They Get Left.

A story is printed about H. W. Lewis of Wichita, the prohibition and temperance worker, which can be applied to some people in every Kansas community.

Mr. Lewis is now a hard worker for the enforcement of the law at Wichita.

Mr. Lewis last year, with a few of his co-workers in the law and order league and a band of music, went out to a school house southwest of town and held a meeting to get signers to the political pledge of the league. On this occasion, as usual, he made the speech of the evening, at the close of which John Bunker arose from the audience and wanted to ask the speaker a question, which request being granted, a colloquy took place in substance as follows:

Mr. B.—"Mr. Lewis, you were at one time a member of the Metropolitan police board of Wichita, were you not?"

Mr. Lewis—"Yes, sir."

Mr. B.—"Mr. Stanley was also a member of that board at the time?"

Mr. Lewis—"Yes, sir."

Mr. B.—"As a matter of fact was the law enforced then any better than it is now?"

Mr. Lewis—"I can't say that it was."

Mr. B.—"Why was not the law enforced then?"

Mr. Lewis—"Because Judge Reed was so rotten and corrupt that he dismissed the liquor cases as fast as they were presented to him."

Mr. B.—"Judge Reed was a candidate for re-election that fall, was he not?"

Mr. L.—"Yes."

Mr. B.—"You voted for him?"

Mr. L.—"Yes."

Mr. B.—"Why did you do that if you wanted this law enforced?"

Mr. L.—"Because I thought Judge Reed had had a change of heart, and if elected would do his duty."

Mr. B.—"If he is a candidate again, you will vote for him, will you not?"

Before Mr. Lewis could answer one of his friends that went with him from town shut off the colloquy by moving an adjournment, which motion was put and declared to be carried.

KIRKPATRICK'S SON.

He Holds a Cadetship in the Naval Academy.

Congressman S. S. Kirkpatrick of the Third district has appointed his son Byron to a cadetship in the naval academy.

The Erie Republican Record defends Congressman Kirkpatrick by saying that while Jeff Hudson, the late Populist congressman from that district, did not appoint his son to West Point he appointed the son of a Populist leader without giving the other boys a chance.

The boy thus appointed failed to pass in the examination and another boy, Curtis Otwell of Independence, got the place.

ALL IN THE TURNVEREIN.

How the People at Denton, Kan., Got Around the Law.

Complaint has reached the state house from Denton, Doniphan county, that, although the joints in that town have been closed, there is just as much beer consumed in the town as ever before.

Denton has about 200 inhabitants, a large per cent of them being Germans.

When the county attorney a short time ago, ordered the joints closed, these German citizens organized two Turnvereins. One is known as the Denton Turnverein and the other as the Doniphan County Turnverein.

These institutions are flourishing, and while the prohibitionists of the town have been satisfied with the closing of the joints, the people still get their beer through these organizations.

The secretary of state has issued charters to both of these organizations, but they are the only Turnvereins chartered during the last two months. Early in the spring two societies of this kind in southeastern Kansas were chartered.

THE WYANDOTTE SALOONS.

Chief of Police Wilkerson Sees Them at Kansas City, Kan.

Chief of Police John Wilkerson, who was in Kansas City, Kansas, one day this week, chasing a criminal, says prohibition does not prohibit in Dr. Dougherty's town much more than it does in Leavenworth.

Chief Wilkerson told a STATE JOURNAL reporter that he was informed by Chief Serviss that there are just forty-five places in Kansas City, Kansas, where liquor is sold.

These places, Chief Wilkerson explains, are not all of them saloons, but some are joints. Most of the saloons are on the regular business streets, and while they do not have the tin beer signs at the door, like those in Kansas City, Mo., they are not hard to find. Whenever you see a screen or cut-off just inside a door you know that it is a saloon, and once behind the screen it is just like any other saloon.

The saloon keepers are arrested and fined about once a month.

The Defaulted School Bonds.

The state school fund commissioners have decided to have the attorney general commence suit to collect the principal and interest on defaulted bonds now held by the school fund. The givers of these bonds have all been given ninety days notice and if they do not pay up at once suit will be commenced for the collection of the bonds. It is expected that some of the defaulted interest will be paid in with the annual settlements now being made with the state treasurer and if this is done a legal proceeding to collect will be avoided.

NOT DEAD NOR SLEEPING.

Mrs. Brooks Husband Will Not Get Damaged.

Immediately after the Santa Fe wreck at Monument, Colorado, the section foreman there Brooks put in a big claim for damages on account of the death of his wife in the wreck. The claim department was already taking steps looking to the settlement of the claim out of court if possible but further proceedings along that line have been stopped by the receipt of a letter by claim Agent Foulks from Mrs. Brooks who is in Colorado, Mo., and very much alive if the letter is to be believed by either its statements or its tone.

In the letter she says that Brooks has no lawful wife but her and that this other woman who was killed is an impostor if it is possible for a corpse to be an impostor.

The claim department has consequently taken a new tack in the matter and Mr. Brooks peace is in danger of being up set.

FIRED INTO THE HOUSE.

A Bullet Shot Into Dr. Hogeboom's House Last Night.

Some excitement was created in the neighborhood of Sixth and Taylor streets, last night by prowlers, firing a shot through a window to Dr. Hogeboom's house. It occurred at 11 o'clock, and Dr. Hogeboom's family had retired. It is presumed that the dog of Mr. Martin, who lives next door west, so annoyed the prowlers that one of them shot at it. The dog was missed, and the bullet went through a west window and lodged in the wall.
